History

Maui Divers started in 1958 as the 1st adventurous diving shop in Lāhainā, Maui, before Hawai'i became a state. A diving expedition in the Moloka'i Channel led Maui Divers to discover the Hawai'i state gem, deep-sea Hawaiian black coral, sparking our exploration into jewelry making. A year later, Maui Divers Jewelry was founded in 1959 and began designing, manufacturing, and selling Hawaiian black coral jewelry. In 1962, the company expanded operations and relocated to Honolulu.

Maui Divers Jewelry is proud to offer a variety of unique, sustainable gems, including the Hawai'i state gem, Hawaiian black coral. Named the state gem in 1987, black coral is one of the most lustrous precious corals in the world.

Pearls and Deep-Sea Corals

Pearls and deep-sea corals are organic gems sensitive to acid and moisture. Wipe pearls with a damp, soft cloth after wearing them to remove residues. Avoid exposing them to excessive heat or direct sunlight.

As for deep-sea corals, we do not recommend any exposure to lotions, perfumes, water, or the like. Depending on the design, exposure to these instances may cause the unique design details to fade.

If you need clarification or feel uncomfortable cleaning yourself regularly, you may always request cleaning and polishing for free as part of your Forever Guarantee.

Gemstones

Gemstones are delicate. Some are vulnerable to chemicals, heat, and light. Avoid exposing gemstones to household cleaners, lotions, and perfumes. Clean them gently using a soft cloth.

Care & Maintenance

General Cleaning and Care

Avoid exposure to extreme heat, chlorine, chemicals, skincare products, and sprays such as colognes and perfumes. Residue can accelerate the tarnishing of silver and damage semi-precious stones/corals.

Storage

Store jewelry individually in your Maui Divers Jewelry soft pouch or lined jewelry box to prevent scratches and tangling. Proper storage prevents contact with other items that might cause damage.

Precious Metals

Sterling Silver can withstand heat but may tarnish over time when exposed to salty air, chlorine, sulfur, humidity, sweat, cosmetics, household bleach, and other strong chemicals. Use a polishing cloth to restore its shine.

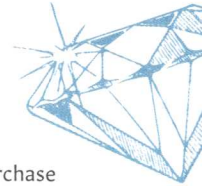
Gold can withstand heat, water, and moisture exposure—clean gold regularly by gently brushing it with a soft-bristled toothbrush, warm water, and soap.

It's important to note that while it is uncommon, individuals may experience precious metal tarnishing if skin acidity is high.

Exclusively Made in Hawai'i

Hawai'i is the inspiration behind everything we do and we are proud to create all our signature jewelry in the same place that inspires us.

Designed by local artists and brought to life by masterful artisans in Honolulu, every piece creates a lasting connection to Hawai'i.



Our Forever Guarantee

Maui Divers Jewelry guarantees your purchase against manufacturing defects and materials. If the defect is due to workmanship or materials, we will repair or replace our jewelry unconditionally and without charge.

Lost, stolen, or damaged pieces due to wear and tear do not qualify for jewelry replacement under our Forever Guarantee. Additionally, the warranty is void if unauthorized jewelers alter, repair, or resize any pieces purchased at Maui Divers Jewelry.
